Common 4 Point Responses

The "Great Migration" Large number of African-Americans from the rural South moved (migrated) to northern cities. Escaping discrimination and little economic opportunities, many worked in factories at low wages. Many northern cities (Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati) became segregated (black and white neighborhoods), while African-Americans gained political power by electing Black council members and mayors.	United States Imperialism Imperialism-when a stronger country has political and economic control over a weaker country. The U.S. became an imperial power after the Spanish-American War, including acquiring Puerto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii and control of Cuba, building the Panama Canal, and supporting the "Open Door" trade policy in China. The factories and production of the Industrial Revolution made imperialism possible.	Factory Working Conditions Workers in factories (USA, Great Britain, China) often faced difficult and harsh working conditions, such as: Long - working hours Unsafe working conditions Low pay Few benefits or rights Child labor
Labor Unions Labor Unions were formed in the United States to give factory workers better working conditions, such as: Safer working conditions Better Pay, some benefits 8-hour work day End of child labor	Groups of People denied rights -Several groups of people have been rights and basic freedoms throughout U.S. history. These groups have included Native Americans, African Americans, Women, factory and farm workers. (continued next cell over)	Groups of People denied rights -These groups of people often led protests and formed organizations (NAACP, NOW - National Organization for Women, AFL - American Federation of Labor) because they were: -discriminated against -denied equality before the law -denied due process of law -denied job opportunities or promotions or - denied the right to vote
Citizenship involvement in types of Governments Citizens in dictatorships (today- Cuba and North Korea) or absolute monarchies (Kings with total power) have virtually no involvement in their society (no voting, protesting, no free speech or press) In a Theocracy (modern day Iran, Saudi Arabia) -the governments are run by religious leaders and laws and citizens also have limited rights or opportunities. In a constitutional monarchy, the King has limited rights and the people have rights, freedoms and liberties. In a presidential democracy, the people elect a president. In a parliamentary democracy, a prime minister is chosen by a parliament, which was elected by the people.	End of World War I The Treaty of Versailles- this ended World War One with the surrender of Germany and other countries. Many Germans viewed this treaty as being unfair, since: -Germany had to accept blame for starting World War One - was reduced in size as a country - Lost its former colonies - had to repay large amounts of money (reparations) The German economy crumbled, an attempt at a democratic government failed, and Hitler and the Nazi political party seized power, leading Germany down a path that led to World War Two.	Cold War The Cold War was between the United States and the Soviet Union. It started right after World War 2, after both countries formed an alliance to defeat Nazi Germany. The Soviet system of Communism was feared by the USA (Red Scare). The United States wanted to contain the spread of Communism and lessen its appeal to other countries. The USA helped rebuild Europe with the Marshall Plan, used the Truman Doctrine to help countries become democracies, and supported anti-Communist governments in the Korean and Vietnam conflicts (Domino Theory)
